This immensely practical workshop shows you how you can “hack” your budget by decreasing your spending in key necessary areas and implementing tricks to make your budget more effective.

The first part of the workshop is a discussion of attendee-submitted local spending data on housing, utilities, transportation, and food, which is gathered through this survey. The usefulness of the workshop depends on the quality and completeness of the data you submit, so please do the best you can. During the workshop, we will discuss frugal strategies in these and other budget categories, and your voluntary contributions are much appreciated.

The second part of the workshop is a presentation of effective budgeting strategies to speed progress toward financial goals. The presenter is Emily Roberts, who holds a Ph.D. in biomedical engineering and is the founder of the websites Grad Student Finances and PhD Stipends.
