Course: Introduction to Graduate School Writing for STEM Disciplines
Meets Tuesdays 9:00am-11:50pm, 308 Voorhies Hall, UWP-298, CRN 80919-006
This course will introduce new graduate students to two of the most important written graduate school genres. Students will choose a topic of interest, conduct library research, and write two genres vital to graduate students: the annotated bibliography, and literature review. The class will focus on how the rhetorical concepts of audience and purpose lead to specific linguistic choices in each genre. For more information email the instructor, Alison Bright, at asbright@ucdavis.edu.
