Starting a large writing project can often be the most difficult step in the writing process. This hands-on workshop will demystify common blocks to starting a writing project, provide participants with strategies for overcoming these blocks, and facilitate participants' development of specific writing goals and a writing schedule to achieve these goals.

Instructor: Alison Bright
Dr. Bright earned her Ph.D. in education from UC Santa Barbara, her MA in English from Sonoma State University, and her BA in Spanish literature from UC Santa Cruz. She teaches a variety of upper division composition courses in the University Writing Program, including writing in elementary and secondary education, business writing, writing for social justice, and writing in the health professions. Her research interests include writing centers, writing tutor and teacher identity, and the preparation of writing teachers.
