Strengths Based Leadership Training:
Assessing and applying your leadership skills for diversity and inclusion

- Meets for 5 sessions
- Tuesdays on February 6 to March 6, 2018
- 2:30-4:30 pm
- Student Community Center, Room C
- More info and registration at: https://goo.gl/forms/elwad3k2WEwLlkaE2

As a grad student or postdoc, are you interested in strengthening your leadership skills to promote diversity and inclusion on our campus and beyond? If so, you are invited to register for this series of workshops that will help you assess your strengths and apply them in leadership teams. Program benefits include:

- Participants will receive a free copy of the book “Strengths Based Leadership”.
- You will assess your strengths and preferences using StrengthsFinder and the Myers-Briggs types, and learn how to apply them in your leadership roles.
- You’ll also share and learn from other grad student/postdoc leaders in highly interactive discussions.
- Current scholarship on diversity, inclusion, and professional training for grad students and postdocs will also be presented for discussion.

Instructor: Steve Lee, PhD (stnlee@ucdavis.edu)
Steve Lee is the Graduate Diversity Officer at UC Davis for grad students and postdocs in the STEM disciplines. He loves to translate cross-disciplinary research into evidence-based activities for professional development, covering topics such as leadership, mentoring, communication skills, self-assessment, and career planning. Previously, he trained and mentored STEM PhD students at Northwestern University in a graduate diversity program. He has also served on the faculty of Roosevelt University and Wheaton College, and earned a PhD in chemistry from the University of Illinois and a BS in chemistry from Carnegie Mellon University.
